KEELER BRASS

Our Story

The Keeler Brass Company was originally founded by brothers Miner, George and Isaac Keeler during the Panic of 1893, a trying time of economic depression in the United States. What began as a small family foundry grew to become at one time, one of the largest private employers in Michigan. Along the way, the name “Keeler” became synonymous with high quality production, impeccable workmanship and design innovation.

Today, Keeler Brass (KB) functions as a division of Keeler Brass Company (KBC), offering sophisticated luxury hardware proudly and wholly designed in-house and constructed of solid brass.

The innate values of KB are inherited from KBC, and are based on our three tenets of Artistry, Innovation and Legacy, but with an understanding of current design trends and popular aesthetic themes. Every design is elevated with the Keeler touch. Our house codes dictate that we maintain a consistent and recognizable design language across the KB product line. We edit and transform every design with an eye for timelessness and polish.

We seek to emphasize the craftsmanship and premium materials used in the KB line to ensure longevity, durability and a luxury feel.
